Definition of 'site licence use'

The software may be used on an unlimited number of computers within the site, including across a local area network. For these purposes the term 'site' refers to a single building, or group of buildings, located at a single address (e.g. where an institution has different building 'blocks' within a single location, this is classified as a site).

Where an institution is spread across more than one geographical location, each with a different postal address, such institutions would be deemed as separate sites. In such circumstances each site would be required to make a separate purchase.

Linking of sites across a Wide Area Network

Where an institution has linked several of its sites across a Wide Area Network, Vocational Technologies has adopted the policy that the first site will pay the full standard price for the product; second and subsequent sites each pay half the standard price.

Licence Agreement

Europe in the Round is licensed, not sold to you, by Vocational Technologies Ltd (hereafter VT) for use only on the terms stated below. VT retains proprietary rights in all copies and formats of the software itself, although you own the disc(s) on which the software is recorded.

1. A site licence allows you to use this software (and copies thereof) on any number of personal computers (IBM-compatible) including across a local area network, provided that all are on a single site ie normally within one building. For a wide area network you need an extended licence from VT.
2. You may not use the software for any commercial purpose, including making charges for loans or printouts, without first obtaining an extended licence from VT (Public libraries are deemed to have such an extended licence).
3. You may not make copies of this software for anyone else nor for use outside the site to which your licence refers. You may sell or give away your software to a third party only if that party agrees to be bound by these terms and conditions and only if you pass on the complete documentation with the software having first destroyed any copies of software or documentation that may have been made.
4. You may make Collections from this software by the method prescribed provided that you retain and respect our Copyright notice on any such Collections. You may copy statistical and other data, and pictures, and may manipulate these using suitable software, but may not publish the manipulated data or picture without first obtaining an extended licence from VT.

This software is supplied 'as is'. VT makes no warranty as to its fitness for any particular purpose. Nor can we give any warranty that the data in this system is or can remain up-to-date, accurate and comprehensive, nor accept any responsibility for any consequences of any errors which may exist, however they are caused.

All rights reserved. Except as specified above, no part of the software or its documentation may be reproduced, stored on a retrieval system or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise without VT's prior written permission.

If you are in any doubt whatsoever about these conditions, please contact VT since a breach of these conditions could result in a criminal as well as a civil offence being committed.
